

Level 6 Statute Books and Recommended Reading Textbook information for candidates 2023 - 2024

This document sets out the recommended texts and other relevant materials in relation to each Level 6 Law and Practice unit for the academic year 2023 - 2024. CILEX does not endorse any of the texts referred to in this document.

GUIDANCE NOTES

- Using statute books

Each of the texts has been identified by a senior member of the Assessment Team responsible for specific units. Where a statute book has been identified, candidates will be permitted to take their own clean and unmarked copy of the statute book into the relevant examination with them.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

The statute books which candidates can take into the examinations must NOT be annotated in any way. The term 'annotated' in this context includes, but is not limited to, the use of highlighter pens, post-it notes, folded down pages, handwritten, or printed comments. During the examination, Invigilators carry out spot checks on the statute books. Candidates who breach the CILEX regulations in relation to statute books are subject to examination misconduct proceedings.

The statute books listed below have been approved by senior Examiners for use in the examinations. Candidates are encouraged to use the most up to date edition of the statute book; however, older editions are permitted in the examination but must be clean and unmarked.

Candidates choosing to use the designated statute book in the examination should ensure that they have thoroughly familiarised themselves with the book prior to the examination, in order to avoid wasting time in the examination.

The statute book should be used only to check the contents and section numbers of legislation. In answering examination questions, candidates should NOT simply copy out the wording of legislation, as no marks will be awarded for this.

For those unit subjects where a statute book is permitted, it is important to remember that candidates are not required to use a statute book in the examination, if they do not have a copy of the relevant statute book, or simply do not wish to use a statute book.

- Recommended reading

It is recommended that candidates obtain the most recent edition of the texts identified below as later editions may have been published after this document was finalised.

CILEX does not endorse study texts and similar materials, and other texts may be equally suitable provided they are written for use on Honours Degree courses. CILEX Law School produces Level 6 manuals based on the CILEX unit specifications. Candidates may also wish to consider these manuals in addition to the range of texts identified below.

Each of the unit examinations are based on each of the relevant unit specifications which can be found on the CILEX website (www.cilex.org.uk). Each unit examination is, therefore, not restricted to the contents of any identified text or body of reading.

Candidates working at Level 6 towards a Certificate or full Professional Higher Diploma are expected to be familiar with source material for their unit subjects, in the form of statutes, cases and books of authority.

- Review and update

Candidates are expected to keep up to date with changes in law and practice that may occur after the publication of the unit specifications and texts. Particular attention should be paid to new cases and statutes.

Each academic year, CILEX will update each of the unit specifications to ensure they are contemporary with the law and legal practice as it develops. Candidates will not be required to demonstrate knowledge or understanding of any changes in the law or in legal practice which have taken effect in the six months immediately prior to the date of an examination.

Each academic year, CILEX will update the Statute books and recommended reading list for each of the Level 6-unit subjects in Law and Practice.
